• Government was able to contain loss of lives while concentrating more on development and employment generating measures to empower citizens.
Governance and Transparency
GOVERNANCE AND TRANSPARENCY

Ensuring an architecture for better Governance, Transparency and Accountability:

Administrative Reforms

• The historic Right to Information Act enacted empowering citizens to know how the Government functions and to increase transparency and accountability in the functioning of the central, state and local governments, as well as recipients of government grants. The Act has enabled citizens to get justice and obtain redress of long pending grievances.

• The Government set up the Second Administrative Reforms Commission, which made several recommendations for comprehensive reform of public administration in the country. Most of the important recommendations of the ARC have been accepted and are under various stages of implementation.

• Comprehensive arrangements have been put in place for improving accountability, efficiency and competency of IAS officers. New policies on mandating mid-career training, intensive review, performance appraisals and promotions have been put in place.

e-Governance

• The Government has successfully implemented e-governance projects relating to income tax, customs and excise, railway reservation, e-credit of India Post Monthly Income Scheme to investor’s account, dematerialization of National Savings Certificate and Kisan Vikas Patra, etc.

• Facility for online submission of passport applications has been introduced and introduction of e-passports is being initiated. Passport Seva Project has been approved so that all passports get issued within three days of police verification by 2009.
• Schemes for computerising over 13,000 Districts and Subordinate Courts and all 646 consumer forums are under implementation.

Anti-Corruption Measures

• The Government remains committed to ushering in reforms for greater transparency, probity, integrity and accountability in governance. To keep pace with the aspirations of the people for clean and transparent governance and also to deal with the increasing complexity of economic offences, the Government has taken several legal and administrative measures. Steps initiated to curb corruption include:

  - Right to Information Act
  - Priority attached to the enactment of the Whistle Blowers’ Protection Bill,
  - Enacting the Lokpal and the Lokayuktas Act,
  - To amend the Prevention of Corruption Act and the Delhi Special Police Establishment Act,
  - Right of Citizens’ for Time Bound Delivery of Goods and Services and Redressal of their Grievances’ Bill.

  - Administrative steps have been initiated to reduce discretionary powers of public servants and to ensure expeditious disposal of disciplinary proceedings.

• As one of the impediments felt in tackling corruption is lack of adequate protection to complainants, “The Public Interest Disclosure and Protection to Persons Making the Disclosure Bill, 2010” has been introduced in the Lok Sabha.

• India has ratified the United Nations Convention Against Corruption. With a view to ensuring full compliance with this Convention, “The Prevention of Bribery of Foreign Public Officials and Officials of Public International Organizations Bill 2011“ introduced in the Lok Sabha.

- Several measures for greater functional autonomy of CBI are under the consideration of the Government, viz. appointment of Director, CBI on recommendation of a Committee; providing provisions for removal of the Director, CBI; Director, CBI to be in the Selection Committee for selection of officers at the level of SP and above in CBI; non-interference in CBI investigations; request for sanction for prosecution received from CBI to be decided within a period of three months; statutory provisions for Director (Prosecution) in CBI and Establishment of an Accountability Commission. Autonomy in investigation is already guaranteed.

Judicial Reforms:

The Judicial Standards and Accountability Bill

- The Bill has been introduced in Parliament. The Judicial Standards and Accountability Bill tries to lay down enforceable standards of conduct for judges and it creates mechanisms to allow any person to complain against judges on grounds of misbehaviour or incapacity. The proposed Bill would strengthen the institution of Judiciary by making it more accountable thereby increasing the confidence of the public in the institution.

The Judicial Appointments Commission Bill, 2013

- The Bill has been introduced in Parliament The Bill seeks to broad base the appointment process and make it more participatory to ensure greater transparency and objectivity in the appointments to higher judiciary. The proposed Bill would enable equal participation of Judiciary and Executive, make the system of appointments more accountable, and thereby increase the confidence of the public in the institutions.
Measures for Women and Children
